

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A projection display system for light valves has a light source, a polarization converter, at least one polarizing beamsplitter, at least one liquid crystal panel for generating an image, a projection source for projecting the image, and a color component rotator located between the polarization converter and the projection source.

20